

Short announcements

IPv6-only default network

- Reminder: we were the first network to have NAT64-only
 - Not IPv6-mostly :)
 - We measurably pushed IPv6-adoption forward
- I had another stupid idea...

IPv6-only default network

- Reminder: we were the first network to have NAT64-only
 - Not IPv6-mostly :)
 - We measurably pushed IPv6-adoption forward
- I had another stupid idea...
 - Next year, the default network will be IPv6-only

IPv6-only default network

- Reminder: we were the first network to have NAT64-only
 - Not IPv6-mostly :)
 - We measurably pushed IPv6-adoption forward
- I had another stupid idea...
 - Next year, the default network will be IPv6-only
- Notable call-outs
 - <https://bsky.app>

IPv6-only default network

- Reminder: we were the first network to have NAT64-only
 - Not IPv6-mostly :)
 - We measurably pushed IPv6-adoption forward
- I had another stupid idea...
 - Next year, the default network will be IPv6-only
- Notable call-outs
 - <https://bsky.app>
 - <https://github.com>

IPv6-only default network

- Reminder: we were the first network to have NAT64-only
 - Not IPv6-mostly :)
 - We measurably pushed IPv6-adoption forward
- I had another stupid idea...
 - Next year, the default network will be IPv6-only
- Notable call-outs
 - <https://bsky.app>
 - <https://github.com>
 - <https://chat.fosdem.org>

The background features a large, faint watermark of the FOSDEM logo. It consists of a large purple gear with a white circle in the center. Inside the white circle is a blue robot head. Below the gear, the text 'FOSDEM' is written in a large, light blue, sans-serif font, followed by '.org' in a smaller, purple font.

If we lose our democracies, Open
Source is irrelevant and goes away

policy@fosdem.org

FOSDEM 26
.org